The Toastmasters Experience and How It Works

The Toastmasters program is not a college, trade school, or other formal course in public speaking. There are no instructors, professors, or classrooms. No one's work is graded and no tests are administered. In Toastmasters, members learn by studying the manuals, practicing, and helping one another. Learning takes place in the Club environment. Club meetings are workshops where you study and practice communication and leadership skills with others who are there for the same reason as you. You learn by doing and by watching fellow Club members.

During Club meetings you will build "quick thinking" skills as you give one-to-two-minute speeches on general subjects during Table Topics. You'll introduce speakers, conduct meetings and perform other roles that will give you plenty of practice in a variety of communication experiences, but your greatest learning will come from preparing and presenting speeches based on the projects in the manual.

The manual has 10 speech projects, each designed to develop your speaking skills one step at a time. Every project builds upon what you have learned in the preceding project, so you should present the speeches in numerical order. The first speech is the Ice Breaker, the subject is yourself. In subsequent speeches you will learn the importance of speaking sincerely, how to effectively organize a presentation, how to use body language and voice to convey your message, word choice and props. Read carefully each project and "Evaluation Guide" in your workbook before you prepare your speech.

Most of your talks will be 5-7 minutes. You will receive verbal and written feedback from an evaluator on each speech you give. The evaluator provides a personal opinion of your talk, pointing out its strengths and offering suggestions for improving your next speech. As you gain more experience you will evaluate the speeches of others.

The Mission of the Club

Is to provide a mutually supportive and positive learning environment in which every member has the opportunity to develop communication and leadership skills, which in turn foster self-confidence and personal growth.

Meeting Participation

In order to benefit most from meetings, please:

- Applaud at the introduction of each speaker and again at the end of the speech (the Toastmaster equivalent of a group hug). It is part of the nurturing environment that grows personal progress.
- Write some comments on the small speech evaluation form for each speaker.
- If you're willing, speak in response to Table Topic questions.
- Ask questions of the members before and after the meeting.
- Let us know how our club can help you achieve your goals.
- Tell us your reaction to the meeting.
- Plan to return for another look.

You have taken an important first step towards improving your communication skills by expressing interest in our program. The next steps are:

- Determine where you stand as a speaker and form a written plan for areas you want to improve in.
- Participate in our next meeting.
- Talk with club members/officers and request a mentor.

We welcome your questions and input.

Cast of Characters

When you attend your first few meetings it will be helpful to know the cast of characters. Other than the Presiding Officer, meeting positions are filled by those volunteering at previous meetings.

Toastmaster: The “Master of Ceremonies”; the Toastmaster introduces the various participants in the meeting and leads the meeting.

Speakers: Typically there are two to four speakers. Each one gives a prepared manual speech, usually 5 to 7 minutes. Each speech has specific objectives that are listed in the speech manual the member is working from.

Table Topics Master: The Table Topics Master helps members practice thinking on their feet. A general interest topic is selected and questions posed to the audience (you may be asked to participate).

General Evaluator: The General Evaluator provides constructive feedback on the meeting in general. In charge of the Evaluation portion of the meeting, the person filling this role introduces and calls for reports from each Evaluator, the Timer, and the Grammarian.

Evaluators: Evaluatiopn motivates speakers to both continue speaking and to improve. The Evaluator highlights the areas the speaker excelled in, and offers constructive suggestions to help the speaker improve. The Evaluator gives an oral review as well as a written review in the speaker’s manual.

Timer: Because one of the purposes of Toastmasters is to ensure our members learn how to express a thought within a specific time, the Timer records and reports the time used by Table Topic speakers, Speakers, and Evaluators.

Grammarian: Checks each participants’ grammar and counts audible pauses such as “ah”, “uh” and “you know”. The Grammarian supplies a “word of the day” for participants to use and names those that use it while speaking.

Vote Counter: This person counts the votes for Best Speaker, Best Evaluator, and best Table Topics Speaker, and then announces the winner.

Some Quotes Concerning Toastmasters

Peter Coors, CEO – Coors Brewing Company

“As my career grew with the company, I needed to develop my communication skills more and more... I’ve learned a great deal about speaking and listening and now realize the importance of the overall program. For me, it took getting into a formal organization – such as Toastmasters – to understand what total communication is all about.”

Debbi Fields Rose, Founder – Mrs. Fields Cookies

“I’d never thought of myself as a great communicator, and that’s one of the reasons I got involved in [Toastmasters]. The idea of getting in front of a group, not as Mrs. Fields but really as Debbi, made my knees shake, and I’d get all dry-mouthed. But the Toastmasters group understood. Here’s a place where you can learn , grow, develop – and where other people are doing and feeling the same thing.”
